

New Boston Cemetery Maps – Cemetery Road Cemetery

Maps downloaded from <https://www.newbostonnh.gov/cemetery-trustees/pages/maps-memorial-day-flags> .

This page also has links to other New Boston (NH) cemeteries:

- Bunker Hill Cemetery
- Dennison Road Cemetery
- Eaton Cemetery
- North Side Cemetery

The link was updated for the town's new website in 2018; if it changes again please locate cemetery information by searching for "Cemetery Trustees" under "Boards and Committees".

If you are looking for a specific gravestone, you may find its location in "Cemetery and Burial Ground Records", a document posted at <http://www.newbostonhistoricalsociety.com/links.html> . This document was created in 1994 by Lisa Johnston and William Savoy for the Historical Society. The authors used Town Reports and other historical sources. The original computer file was lost; it was recreated in 2018 by Jennifer Allocca. We have made efforts to verify the contents of this list but it is not 100% accurate or complete.

How to read "Cemetery and Burial Ground Records":

The entry for Louisa L. Andrews that shows her Burial Date is 1922, her age at time of death was 67-4-27, her gravestone is located in OYU-65-, and there is an "X" indicating that her headstone was still standing in 1994. The authors indicated that "Burial Date" is not necessarily the year this person died. Her age is expressed in Year-Month-Day format: Louisa was 67 years, 4 months and 27 days old when she died. "OYU-65-" means that she was buried in the "Old Yard – Upper section". You will see that plot numbers in the Old Yard map have a "U" or "L" suffix for Upper or Lower section.

Maps for the Old Yard (Old Cemetery) and Survey Maps 1-8 are included on the following pages.
